A village township in old England furnishes a rich background for this unique story of the mechanical doll, that was brought to life by electricity and performed the wonderful feats that astounded and delight the villagers and also the audience. Everyone has read Mr. Pidgin's first story, "Quincy Adams Sawyer" and "The Toymakers" is full of life and fun. The book can be bought at Don C. Stiles' bookstore for 50 cents.

A Newport Wedding.

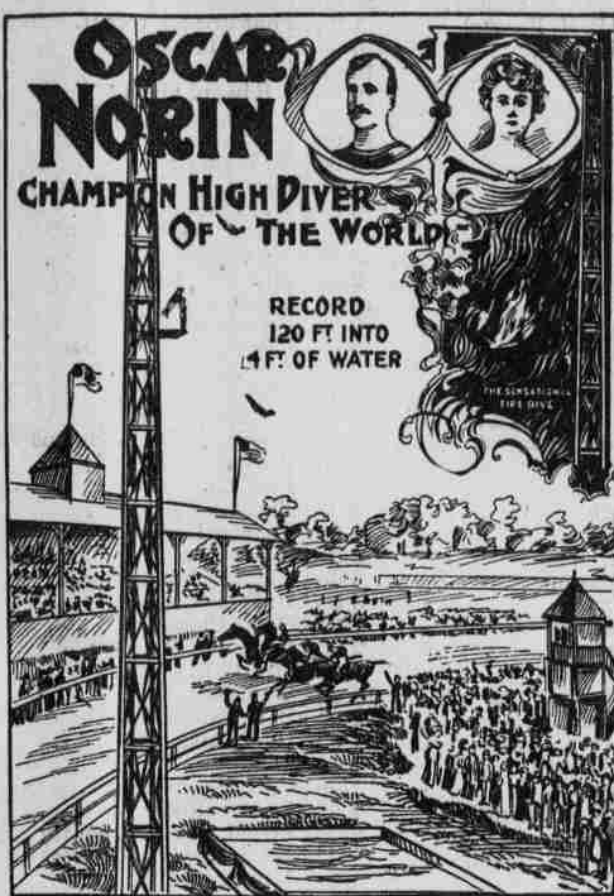

"One of the pleasantest events of the season took place at the residence of F. C. Williams, in this village, on Wednesday evening, July 10, it being the marriage of his second daughter, Florence Eliza Williams to Moses Andrews Fulington of Toronto, Que. It was in fact a June wedding delayed a few days; a beautiful day and a wealth of roses which with ferns and daisies neatly arranged, made the most beautiful of decorations. The ceremony was performed promptly at eight o'clock by Rev. R. C. Flagg, D. D., the ring service being used. The bridesmaid was Miss Grace Williams, sister of the bride, and the best man, William A. Cowan of Toronto, an intimate friend and business companion of the groom. The guests were limited to relatives, some 25 being present, including in the number a grandmother each to the groom and bride. The presents were numerous, useful and valuable, solid silver predominating. There was a gift of nearly $50, from members of the Congregational church and congregation in appreciation of the bride's faithful and efficient service in the choir. During her residence here of ten years, Miss Williams has been a special favorite with all who came to know her well and her going away will be deeply regretted by all. Mr. Fulington graduated from St. Johnsbury Academy in 1899, then took a course in electrical engineering at McGill College, Montreal, and is now employed by the C. P. Railway as a civil engineer. After the ceremony, choice refreshments were served and a sort of family social reunion followed, until the night train south when the couple left with a multitude of good wishes accompanied by rice and torpedoes. After a week or two at the Fulington cottage in Johnson, they will go to Toronto where a neat house awaits them in good part furnished by the railroad friends of Mr. Fulington. They will be at home at 28 Willoughby Ave., Toronto Junction, Ont., where the latch string will ever be out to all eastern friends especially."

The above taken from the Newport Express and Standard will be interesting to many of our readers.
